Of Restoration

In our desire to "restore all things in Christ", oftentimes we become too filled with the restoration of Things - Usages - long since buried and which have fallen to complete disuse - resurrected things and usages that have, at best, personal sentimental value; we become too concerned, therefore, with the preservation of unessential externalisms that have lost all relevance. In so doing, because of insufficient theological background, some try to impose a way of life that is artificial and manufactured and which can in no way be judged Catholic in its interpretation! This would be no restoration at all. It is wholeness that we have to try to recover. People today have forgotten how to be Catholic! People today have forgotten how to address themselves to God in prayer. It is Life that we have to give to the man of the Twenty-First Century - not Things.
