

The Quality of Faith

Faith is not only the principle of hope and charity, but is also the source of all the other Christian virtues, such as humility, obedience, patience, piety, and chastity, which without Faith would be unknown upon the earth. It is Faith which germinates virtues in the souls of good and properly disposed faithful people. With eyes fixed upon the Holy Face of our most loving and Divine Redeemer, Jesus, it is Faith which nourishes, develops and preserves virtue in the Heart of Man. The more lively be the Faith in Man, the more ardent are all the other virtues, and the more do zeal, determination, and generosity show themselves in the offering to God of all the sacrifices He requires of us all.

With Faith we triumph over the most violent passions and the most terrible temptations. Because of our Faith in God we keep away from the most alluring occasions of sin and overcome the greatest obstacles. With Faith we allow ourselves to be guided by the loving hand of God as easily as little children are guided by the loving hands of their mothers. Without Faith we fulfill no duty or good work with courageous and constant fidelity. Without Faith we flinch before the least privation or inconvenience. Without Faith we bolt at even the slightest opposition. Without Faith we helplessly and perpetually slink about in the shadows of life,

Faith is most wonderful and a special gift of God to those whose eyes remain fixed upon His countenance with love and devotion and trust! ☐
